Objectives

The yabusame ritual will be held to pray for peace, a rich harvest, and people's health, as well as to wish for the promotion and development of various cultural traditions that live on in the city of Kamakura and for the preservation of yabusame and other forms of Japanese horseback archery. In addition to allowing Japanese citizens to appreciate the allure of yabusame, the event will convey yabusame's appeal to foreigners by providing live commentary and reference materials in English.

Furthermore, the event will promote the appeal of Kamakura more broadly and eloquently by presenting exhibit booths that showcase the diverse culture passed down in the city—including not only yabusame but also Noh theater, Kamakura-bori lacquerware, and the food culture of the Kamakura period—and offering hand-led horse rides for children.

About Yabusame

Shooting arrows from a galloping horse is called kisha, and the Shinto ritual in which kisha is dedicated to a shrine is called yabusame. Yabusame has a history that goes back 1,500 years and is said to have taken its present form in the early Kamakura period (1185–1333). Being a Shinto ritual, it is not just a competition of martial skill but is conducted to pray for such things as peace, a rich harvest, and people's health.

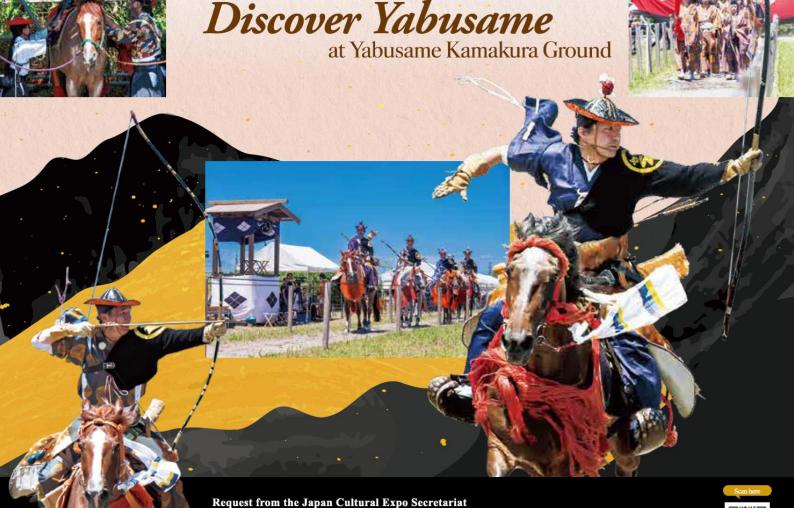

The Japan Equestrian Archery Association, which preserves and maintains yabusame, invites you to take this opportunity to view the ancient art that has been handed down for eight centuries.

Yabusame Kamakura Ground

The Yabusame Kamakura Ground is a training ground featuring a 220-meter yabusame horse track. Established on November 15, 2020, by the Japan Equestrian Archery Association on land owned by Kamakura City, it is the largest permanent facility in Japan designed for yabusame. The association welcomes visitors who wish to observe the training sessions held at the ground every Sunday. For more information, please visit the association's website.
